Welcome to North Carolina A&T!

Dear Parents and Family Members,

Welcome to the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical State University family! It is our pleasure to welcome each of you to our community. North Carolina A&T State University is committed to partnering with parents and families to assist in the success and education of our new students. The Office of New Student Programs provides resources and programs to assist you in the support of your student's growth at NCA&T and also to provide support to students as they transition into college life. We encourage you to take advantage of our resources over the next couple of years. We offer a wide variety of resources and events for parents and families including Parent Orientations and Family Weekend during every fall semester. We would like for you to visit the parent web site frequently at www.ncat.edu/~freshman. This website is up-to-date with information you need to know and can serve as a great starting point when questions or concerns arise.

As you explore our many different resources for information, you will have the opportunity to discover North Carolina A&T's rich and storied history and learn about our award-winning faculty, intensive research programs, and student-led community service initiatives. While we celebrate our profound history steeped in academic and social responsibility, we are not prepared to rest on our laurels, but instead, will continue to explore new frontiers of knowledge through cutting edge research.

N.C. A&T is a community partner, neighbor and an active corporate citizen of the Piedmont Triad. Born from the University's mission to offer exemplary instruction, scholarly and creative research, and effective public service, our outreach efforts illustrate how campus and community collaborations enhance the quality of life for the citizens of North Carolina, the nation, and the world. A&T is a vital part of the community and the community is a vital part of A&T. The faculty, staff and students are the essence of what makes A&T special. In your explorations, discover what makes our faculty, students and alumni strongly committed to A&T and the true meaning of Aggie Pride.

I invite you to become a part of a vision that continues to produce tomorrow's leaders. I encourage you to visit our beautiful campus and tour our state-of-the-art classroom buildings, sit in a class or laboratory, or attend an athletic or cultural event. See firsthand how A&T is making a difference in the world!

We appreciate your participation and involvement in your student's experience and look forward to an awesome next few years with your student on our campus. Please don't hesitate to ask us for assistance as your student transitions to this very exciting time in their lives! Best of Wishes!

Ten Tips for Parents

1 Allow Time to get Adjusted

The first few days/weeks of school require many adjustments to new situations as well as concentration on the academic transition from high school to college. Believe it — they are missing home at the same time they are adjusting to cultural, academic, and social change. You can help if you write. Send a card with a handwritten note or write a letter letting them know that you are going through a period of adjustment as well. Better yet, use the available technology (email, text messaging) or whatever works best for you. A care package loaded with all their favorite treats will let them know how much you love them and are thinking about them.

2 Ask Questions

Of course you want to know how things are going. Believe this, it won't hurt to ask. Let them know you are interested in what's going on with them. Be a good listener and point them to useful resources.

3 Expect change to occur gradually (or maybe instantly, like having a roommate) and be patient

College brings change and maturing that takes time. Give old habits a chance to weed out and new ones a chance to develop as your Aggies finds out what works best for them.

4 Don't worry (too much) about "nothing is going right...I hate this place...I want to come home" phone calls, letters, emails or text messages

Let them get it off their chest, but try to find out what's really bugging them and why. Ask about rest, relaxation, and recreation opportunities and about the things they do in their spare time that they enjoy. Suggest a way to have them integrate those things into college life. Encourage them to stay on campus on the weekends so they can really experience college life. Let college grow on them. Know what resources are available to help if they hit a snag and, whom to call if the going gets too rough. Encourage them to seek out the services Morgan has to offer. A friendly reminder about the services discussed at ACCESS Orientation would be great!

North Carolina A&T State University Guide

5 Visit

Yes, you want to see them, and they want to see you. Visits by parents are another of the first year events that freshmen are reluctant to admit liking but appreciate greatly. Spur-of-the-moment "surprises" usually are not appreciated, so give advance notice. They will want to impress you about how clean they keep their room.

6 Give them a sense of security

Help provide the tools they need. Secure their finances. College costs money. Pay their bills on time. Then, send money for everything from books, to flash drives, to snacks or the movies and laundry. Establish a bank account, cash card system, and definitely put them on a budget. Have health insurance and a process in place for a health emergency.

www.universityparent.com/ncat

7 Give them their space

Your "Aggie" will be growing into independence. When they come home for the holidays, allow them to share their time with family and to catch up with old friends. They like to eat, and, after dorm food, they will spend plenty of time at home.

8 Connect with the university

A&T is your friend. Establish contacts in various offices that can provide appropriate information and help your student when needed. Attend Homecoming in the Fall. Give thanks when you get help; you may need it again!

9 Most Importantly, Trust Them

You know in your heart that you have done everything in your power to raise your student well. They won't forget you or what you have taught them. Independence will come through the freedom of experience, not instruction. Mistakes will occur. Let them be a learning experience.

Student Involvement

Student Government Association (SGA)
Memorial Student Union, Room 213
Email: sga@ncat.edu
Phone: (336) 334-7820

The Student Government at the University of North Carolina A&T is the representative body for all undergraduate students. It acts as a lobbying force and a liaison between the administration and student body. The Student Government is comprised of three branches. The Executive Branch which consist of the president, vice president, treasurer, and executive cabinet. The Senate; which is the legislative branch, voices students concerns and passes it to legislation to improve student life. The Judicial Branch, presided by the chief justice, is primarily responsible for interpreting and enforcing the Student Government Constitution.

It is the organization primarily responsible for shaping the Memorial Union, the center of the University's social activities, designed to enhance the social, moral, intellectual, cultural, and political life of each individual student. Through its various committees, it provides cultural, social and recreational programs to make free time activity and education go hand in hand.

North Carolina A&T State University Guide

Campus Recreation Center

The mission of Campus Recreation is to provide a broad and diversified program of sports and activities that meet the needs and interest of the entire campus community. These activities are organized and administered in a manner that is intended to provide a recreational break from academic pursuits, improve physical health, and develop skills and interest that contribute to healthy lifestyles. The greatest opportunity lies in fostering personal growth through competition, self-testing, and teamwork that is found in participating in recreational sports.

Residence Hall Association (RHA)

Aggie Village Building 2
Phone: (336) 285.4337

The Residence Hall Association (RHA) is a student leadership organization that represents various residence halls, which house the on campus student population. The purpose of the Residence Hall Association is to foster a sense of community within and between the residence halls as well as to promote the overall residence hall experience within a living and learning community. The goal and purpose of the Residence Hall Association is to also provide information, programs and resources for residence hall students.

RHA strives to give each on campus resident a voice within the department of Housing and Residence Life as well as a voice within university administration. In its effort to give each on campus student a voice, RHA emphasizes and promotes leadership and educational opportunities in the residence halls, effective communication within and between the residence halls and Housing and Residence Life, academic excellence for all residential students, and a sense of self respect for all individuals that reside within the on campus living community.

RHA works diligently to make sure that students are aware of university/departmental policies and procedures as well as, self governance within the residence halls. RHA believes that all students should have an understanding of the importance of a general appreciation for cultural and social diversity, as well as social responsibility and social awareness through educational and community service opportunities. ►

RHA will also serve as a representative body for students living within the on campus community in matters concerning Residence Life policies and procedures, residential facilities, food services, and programming efforts within the residence halls and throughout campus.

Greek Life

The Greek Community at North Carolina A&T State University consists of all of the Historically Black Fraternities and Sororities as well as local social organizations, honor societies and professional organizations. In order to function on campus, organizations are registered with Student Affairs who works closely with individual organizations in the development of their programs and activities.

FERPA

In compliance with Federal Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (FERPA), North Carolina A&T State University (NC A&T) is prohibited from providing certain information from your student records to a third party, such as grades, billing, tuition and fee assessments, financial aid (including scholarships, grants, work-study or loan amounts) and other student record information. This restriction includes, but is not limited to, your parents, spouse or a sponsor. FERPA is a Federal law that protects the privacy of student education records. In order for the University to release information to anyone other than yourself, various on-campus offices, federal, state and law enforcement agencies are exempt under the FERPA law, this release form must be signed by you (the student) and will remain in effect until revoked by you in writing.

Please note that it is the policy of NC A&T not to release certain aspects of student records (income, grade point average, grades, and account balance) over the telephone or via e-mail. Students must visit the respective offices to obtain this information. ■

Aggie Boosters

The mission of The Aggie Athletic Foundation is to provide support to the Athletics Department at North Carolina A&T State University and to foster the athletic, academic and social development of student athletes.

This commitment includes providing financial support for athletic scholarships, facilities, equipment and other resources to support high performance in all varsity sports with an equal focus on providing a high quality experience for both student athletes and supporters while utilizing the highest integrity for athletic excellence within the rules and guidelines established by North Carolina A&T State University, Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Aggie Athletic Foundation Board of Directors is working hard to enhance your experience in this exciting organization. Becoming a donor of The Aggie Athletic Foundation gives benefits that serve to highlight your support of Aggie Athletics. These benefits are our way of saying thank you.

Welcome to Greensboro!

Greensboro History

Saura and Keyauwee Indians were the earliest inhabitants of Piedmont North Carolina. The first settlers in the Greensboro area were mostly Germans, Quakers of Welsh and English descent and Scotch-Irish who came to the Piedmont from Northern colonies. These pioneers worked the land and shaped the future for generations to come. Permanent settlement began around 1740.

To thwart the invasion of North Carolina by 1,900 redcoats under Lord Cornwallis, American Major General Nathanael Greene deployed 4,400 rebels in three battle lines at Guilford Courthouse on March 15, 1781. Cornwallis held the field after an intense, two-hour fight, but lost one-quarter of his army, which hastened his eventual defeat at Yorktown seven months later.

In 1807, the residents of the area voted to create a new, more centrally located seat of government. The following year, elected officials mapped out a 42-acre tract of land, paid $98 to purchase it and suggested that it be named Greensborough after the patriot commander Nathanael Greene.

The new town prospered and it wasn't long before it became a center for educational and economic opportunities. Greensboro was and continues to be a "chosen center."
